The Indus script is an unknown writing system, and the inscriptions discovered are very short, comprising no more than five signs on the average. With good reasons, the prospects of a successful decipherment have been considered meagre at best.

Indus script - Wikipedia

The Indus script (also known as the Harappan script) is a corpus of symbols produced by the Indus Valley Civilization, an ancient civilization that flourished on the Iranian plateau and India from c. 2600 BC to 1800 BC. The Indus script consists of around 400 signs, of which 31 are used regularly. The script has not yet been successfully deciphered.

The Indus script remains to be deciphered. However, we can say that the Indus Valley Civilization, aka the Harappan civilization, lived on for more than 1,700 years, from 2600 BC to 1800 BC. Archaeologists have found no less than 700 such wells in Mohenjo Daro. Credit: Tauseef
